

SMITH-PICKENS

By Grace Smith Pettijohn

GC
929.2
Sm 616p

Gc
929.2
Sm616p
1139155

GENEALOGY COLLECTION

ALLEN COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

3 1833 01393 4390

GENEALOGY
929.2
SM616P

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

TO

JOHN SMITH

AND

MARTHA PICKENS

BY

GRACE SMITH PETTIJOHN

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA

1912

Grace Smith Pettijohn

SMITH-PICKENS.

1139155

PREFACE.

Believing that a family history is of priceless value, and that many members of the Smith-Pickens family have long yearned for such a record, I have decided to pick up the broken threads as they have been handed down to me, and weave this cloth of gold—rich in quality and texture.

Of the present generation little is written, because it is known to each of us, and later, when other generations shall come on, we shall look to one of the younger ones to write another book and record our deeds.

In the history of all royal families we find noble deeds, fame and grandeur in all forms, but just as prominent do we find shame, disgrace and all forms of corruption. While our family history reveals no heretofore unsurpassed fame, yet it is exceptionally free from disgrace.

If every genius in the world should die, I am convinced that the Smith family would live on, but should every Smith die, I am just as sure that the rest of the world would be troubled to find supplies for their places.

May not we later generations pay tribute to the simple virtues of our pioneer ancestors, and by worthy imitation dedicate our lives to as noble work as did they, and, by so doing, dedicate these pages to their sacred memory?

AUTHOR.

Howie B. B. B. — 900

NOTE OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Acknowledgment is made for permission to use names, dates and other material collected from time to time by J. P. Smith; for the untiring response to questions put to S. M. Smith; for letters from D. H. Russell and Col. W. S. Pickens, which gave much of the early history of our family; and for the use of the family tree planned and drawn by Bessie M. and Adelaide Smith.

SMITH GENEALOGY.

Records of the Smith family are very meager. From the best evidence obtainable it is known that Job Smith, of Scotch-Irish descent, served through the Revolutionary War as a soldier from the State of Virginia, and afterwards went to South Carolina and secured a large grant of land from the State and settled by the waters of Three and Twenty Creek, on which land his body now lies buried.

His children were:

- II. 1. John Smith.
- 2. Dorcas Smith Gasaway.
- 3. Job Smith.
- 4. William Smith.
- 5. Bassil Smith.
- 6. Nancy (Mrs. John D.) Treadaway.
- 7. Mollie (Mrs. Phillip) Porter.
- 8. Joseph Smith.

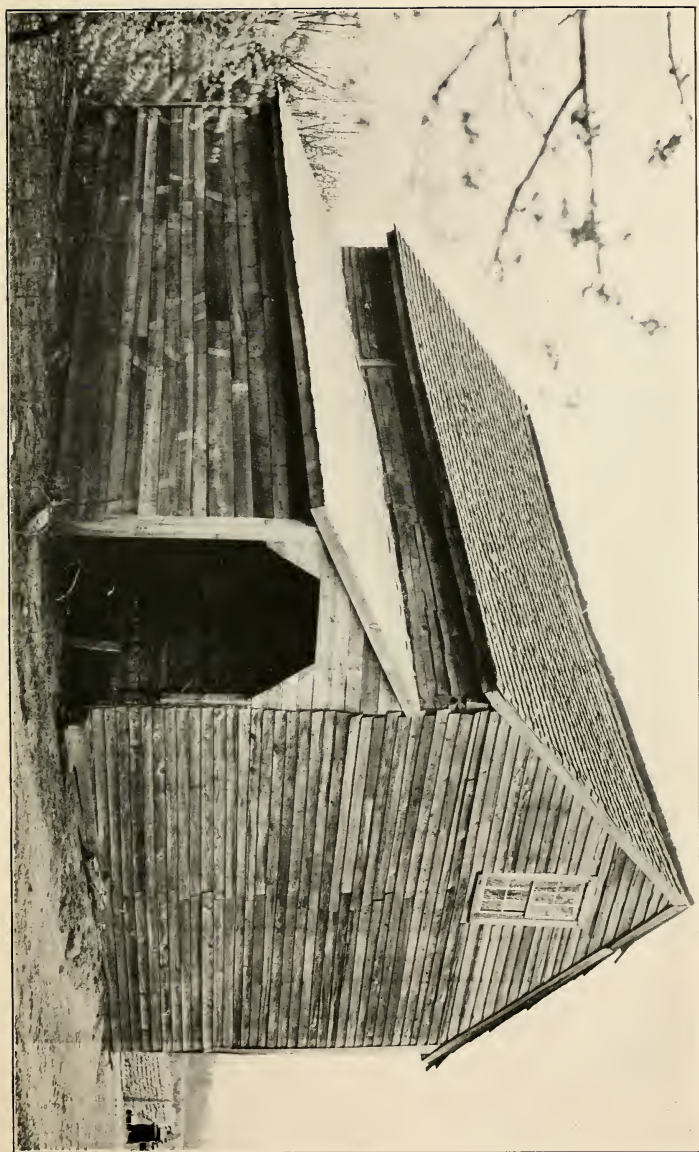

William, Job and Bassil Smith were all Methodist ministers. William Smith married Nancy Charles. Their sons were:

- III. 1. James Smith.
- 2. John Smith.
- 3. Israel Smith.
- 4. Joseph Smith.

They also had several daughters, one of whom was Martha Smith, who married Robert Pickens III.

John Smith, the son of Job Smith, was a farmer and blacksmith, an energetic, fearless, honest and successful business man. He joined the Methodist Church as soon as it was organized in that country. He lived a consistent religious life, thereby setting an example for his posterity. It is said that overwork and heat from the forge caused the loss of his eyesight about twelve years before his death. About the year 1800 John Smith married Martha Pickens, whose father gave them the land on which they lived and died. It is of the descendants of these two that this account is told.

It is interesting to know that they built their log house one and one-half stories high, eighteen feet wide, twenty-four feet long. It had a shed room and small piazza in front and the house had a brick chimney. The accompanying picture was made recently, and shows the shed room and piazza, as they were called, converted into a wagon shed—thus concealing the front door and the entire house used as a barn. The picture is inserted for the sentiment of our oldest living generation, and we entreat the gentle reader of the rising generation to consider his own birthplace a century hence, should it be converted into a corncrib in the meantime, and be not critical of this, our first Smith-Pickens home.

PICKENS GENEALOGY.

Many names of the Pickens family are interwoven with the history of the State of South Carolina, both in a civil and a military capacity, and their deeds in war and peace have reflected honor upon their native State.

Nearly two centuries ago there lived in the parish of Killeadough County, Ireland, a family of Scotch Covenanters of the Presbyterian faith. Two brothers of this family—Andrew and Robert Pickens II—emigrated to this country in colonial days. Andrew Pickens settled in Pennsylvania and Robert Pickens in Maryland. Some time after the close of the French and Indian war, in 1763, a great Scotch-Irish emigration went southward, and in this were the families of the two brothers, Robert and Andrew. A great part of this emigration settled in the Waxhaw district, where Andrew Jackson was born, and in York and Chester districts, as they were then called. The Presbyterian churches which they formed are still in existence all over those counties.

But Andrew and Robert Pickens had heard of a section of South Carolina, bordering on Savannah River, but recently acquired from the Indians. They went to this country, called the Upper Long Cane Section of Abbeville district, where they helped to found the Upper Long Cane Presbyterian Church, which remains to this day. However, Robert Pickens' family afterwards became Methodists, to which church the succeeding generations of this record have almost entirely adhered.

These two brothers were living there peacefully in prosperity, both elders in their church, when the guns at Lexington, Mass., awoke the country to the fact that the Revolution had commenced and that the birth of a new Nation was at hand. Both brothers took arms, Andrew becoming a Colonel of a regiment, and afterwards a Brigadier-general, and Robert a Lieutenant in a company. These men were active in service throughout the entire war. Andrew Pickens made a treaty with the Cherokees under a great spreading oak near his home, which oak is still standing. By this treaty the Indians ceded a large tract of country now embraced in four counties.

An interesting tradition has been handed down from father to son, and is as follows: The history of the recovery of the Carolinas after it had been overrun by the British is well known. However, there were a few who, remaining loyal to the crown, were very hostile towards the members of the Continental army. On one occasion, when Lieut. Robert Pickens was at home on a furlough, visiting his family, a body of these Tories surrounded the house, bent on the capture of this hero. Lieut. Pickens and his wife planned their campaign for defense. The door was closed, and, while the brave wife did what she could to keep the Tories out, Lieut. Pickens climbed the chimney, the door was then opened, and the Tories entered with such noise and confusion that Lieut. Pickens was enabled to run down the roof, jump to the ground, and hurriedly secrete himself in the field back of the house. A large pine log lay in the field, and the bark having just fallen off, he crept closely to the log and pulled the bark over himself. The Tories, after searching the house, rushed down through the field, jumped over this very log, and, not seeing him, were soon lost in the distance.

At the close of the Revolution Robert Pickens settled by the Three and Twenty Creek, being the first white settler in that section. This land has passed to the seventh generation, and is now owned by Robert Pickens VII, and it is here where his ancestor, Robert Pickens II, was the first person buried in the Pickens graveyard, as it is still known.

The Pickens family has furnished three governors of the State of South Carolina: Andrew, Ezekiel and Francis W. Pickens. They have always been land-owners. They have been men and women of high character and sterling integrity, honored and respected by their fellow-citizens in church and state.

Robert Pickens married Dorcas Hallum, and their children were:

- II. 1. John Pickens.
2. Martha Pickens.
3. Margaret Pickens.
4. Elizabeth Pickens.
5. Mary Pickens.
6. Andrew Pickens.
7. Dorcas Pickens.
8. Anna Pickens.
9. Robert Pickens III.

Margaret and Elizabeth Pickens never married.

Mary Pickens married George Bowman, a Methodist minister. He was the father of Pickens Bowman and grandfather of Viro Bowman.

Andrew Pickens married Katie Weaver. He was a Methodist minister. They had a family.

Dorcas Pickens married Mr. Parris.

Anna Pickens married James Bolding.

Robert Pickens married Martha Smith, a niece of John Smith, who married Robert's sister, Martha Pickens. After Martha's death, Robert Pickens married Nancy Pegg. He had nine children by each wife.

Robert Pickens' and Martha Smith Pickens' children were:

- III. 1. Margaret Pickens.
2. Sallie Pickens.
3. John Norton Pickens.
4. Charles Franklin Pickens.
5. Col. William Smith Pickens.
6. Robert Mason Pickens.
7. James Madison Pickens.
8. Martha Ann Pickens.
9. Israel Wesley Pickens.

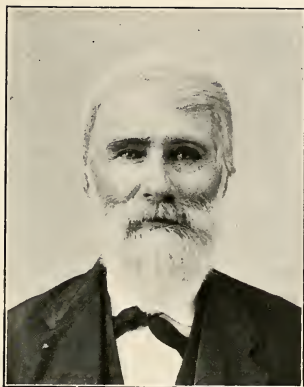

Margaret Pickens married Simeon Rogers.

Sallie, John and Chas. Pickens died in youth.

Martha Ann Pickens was married and died in childbirth.

Israel Wesley Pickens married and had one son.

Robert Mason and James Madison Pickens were both Methodist ministers.

Col. Wm. S. Pickens.

Col. Wm. S. Pickens tells of his own life in a most interesting manner. He was married three times. His first wife was Julia Ann Welborn. After twelve years she died, leaving three sons. His second wife was Prudence Emeline Oliver, with whom he lived thirty-five years. They had four daughters and one son. After the death of his second wife he married Martha Louisa Rush, with whom he lived the rest of his life.

He had eight children, thirty-eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren—fifty in all—and he wrote that all of the fifty were expected for Christmas dinner at his house each year.

He was an official member of the M. E. Church over fifty years, was Sunday-school superintendent for thirty years and Sunday-school lecturer for several years. He gave liberally to his children and paid more state, county and church tax than any man in his township.

* * * * *

Martha Pickens, daughter of Robert Pickens, married John Smith, son of Job Smith, about the year 1800, and it is of their descendants that this account is told, and herewith begins a renumbering of the generations, with John Smith and Martha Pickens No. I.

Their children were :

- II. 1. Lucinda Smith.
 2. Talitha Smith.
 3. Sidney Smith.
 4. Miranda Smith.
 5. Mary A. Smith.
 6. John Collinsworth Smith.
 7. James Douthart Smith.
 8. Andrew McKindrew Smith.

John Smith died Sept. 26, 1848.

Martha Pickens Smith died March 17, 1818.

* * * * * *

LUCINDA SMITH

Lucinda Smith was born in South Carolina, Sept. 16, 1802. She married James Douthett Sims, a farmer and a local Methodist minister. She died Dec. 18, 1870. Their children are:

- III. 1. Mary Ann Talitha Sims.
- 2. Martha Emeline Sims.
- 3. John McPherson Sims.
- 4. Eliza Jane Sims.
- 5. Miranda Elizabeth Sims.
- 6. Margaret Louisa Sims.
- 7. James Addison Sims.
- 8. Emily Amanda Sims.

This family lived in South Carolina and Georgia, but while their children were small they moved to Indiana.

* * * * *

Mary Ann Talitha Sims was married to James Wesley Higgins, a carpenter and cabinetmaker. Their only child is:

- IV. 1. James B. Higgins.

James B. Higgins is a millwright. He married Emeline Smith, and they had two children:

- V. 1. Estella Higgins.
- 2. Pearl Higgins.

Estella Higgins died in infancy.

Pearl Higgins married John H. Shoaf, a designer and manufacturer of biscuit dies. They live in Indianapolis, Ind., and have two daughters:

- VI. 1. Doris Shoaf.
- 2. Marie Shoaf.

James B. Higgins' second wife was Elizabeth Stultz. Their children are:

- V. 1. Claud Higgins.
- 2. Nellie Higgins.

Claud Higgins is an electrician. He married Dana Lowden. They have a daughter:

- VI. 1. Jeannette Higgins.

* * * * *

LUCINDA SMITH.

Martha Emeline Sims was married to Martin Van Buren McQuitty, a farmer. They went to Iowa. Their children are:

- IV. 1. Hannah McQuitty.
2. Luella McQuitty.
3. Amanda McQuitty.

* * * * *

John McPherson Sims

John McPherson Sims, a contractor and builder, married Emeline Parr. They had a double wedding ceremony, when his sister, Emily Amanda Sims, married his wife's brother, Dr. J. Nelson Parr.

John McPherson Sims united with the Methodist Church in early life and held official relation to it for many years. Their son was:

- IV. 1. Charles Elliott Sims.

After the death of his first wife J. McPherson Sims married Mrs. Jane Ellen Scott-Port, of Knightstown, Ind., where they lived and where he superintended farming interests until his death. He was the first President of the Smith-Pickens Association.

Charles Elliott Sims was in the wholesale jewelry business in Indianapolis. He and his father both died of pneumonia, a few hours apart. The son had been especially attentive to his father during his last few years of delicate health, and while nursing him in his last illness Elliott contracted the same disease, and both succumbed to it. Charles Elliott Sims married Lula Pea. Their only son was:

LUCINDA SMITH.

V. 1. Herbert Elliott Sims.

So soon after the deaths of his father and grandfather, a sad fate ended the young life of Herbert Elliott Sims, when he met with an accident when crossing the railroad.

* * * * *

Eliza J. Sims Higgins.

After the death of her oldest sister, Eliza Jane Sims was married to James Wesley Higgins, her brother-in-law.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Orra Higgins.
- 2. Margaret Higgins.
- 3. Malissa Higgins.
- 4. Emma Higgins.
- 5. William Addison Higgins.

Orra Higgins was married to John Calvin, a carpenter, of Zionsville, Ind. They now live in Indianapolis, Ind.

LUCINDA SMITH.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Lillian Calvin.
- 2. Clarence Calvin.

Lillian Calvin was married to Jasper Peacock, who is employed by a book concern in Washington, where they live. Their children are:

- VI. 1. Robert Peacock.
- 2. Ruth Peacock.

Ruth Peacock died in infancy.

Clarence Calvin is employed in a foundry in Detroit, Mich. He married Nora Godfrey. Their children are:

- VI. 1. Harry Calvin.
- 2. Lillian Calvin.
- 3. Morris Calvin.
- 4. Elizabeth Calvin.

Margaret Higgins was married to William Hammond, an editor, and they live in California.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Arthur Hammond.
- 2. Bertha Hammond.
- 3. Albert Hammond.
- 4. Alfred Hammond.
- 5. Jessie Hammond.

Bertha Hammond is married and lives in Minneapolis, Minn.

Malissa Higgins, a twin sister of Margaret Higgins, was married to Luther M. Pentecost. They reside in Indianapolis, Ind. Their only child died in infancy.

- V. 1. Raymond W. Pentecost.

Emma Higgins is a woman of artistic temperament, an expert needle-woman, and her designs in artcraft have gained her considerable recognition. She was married to Hubert Craft, a railroad postal clerk, of Indianapolis. Their two sons are skilled musicians.

- V. 1. Dean Craft.
- 2. Kenneth Craft.

Dean Craft married Ethel Brown, of Warsaw, Ind., and their home is in Indianapolis, Ind.

Kenneth Craft is a student at DePauw University and a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity.

William Addison Higgins is a graduate of Wabash College at Crawfordsville, Ind. He is a musician and a student of history. He married Katherine Brown, of Indianapolis.

LUCINDA SMITH.

Miranda Elizabeth Sims was married to Henry Drury, a carpenter and builder.

* * * * *

Margaret Louisa Sims Stabler.

Margaret Louisa Sims married the Rev. Thomas Stabler, of Yorkshire, England, a minister of the M. E. Church. Their children are all gifted musicians. The quartet is composed of:

- IV. 1. William J. Stabler.
2. Thos. Percival Stabler.
3. Mary Louisa Stabler.
4. Edith S. Stabler.

William J. Stabler, a professional musician, married Della Quivey, a teacher of painting. They live in Michigan. Their only son is:

- V. 1. Quivey Stabler.

Thomas Percival Stabler has a position in a railroad office in Dayton, Ohio.

Mary Louisa Stabler, a most capable and accomplished woman, married Charles Fremont Hunt, of Indianapolis, in which city they lived for several years, but now reside in Lafayette, Ind. Their children are:

- V. 1. Helen Gayl Hunt.
2. Edith Gladys Hunt.
3. Richard Stabler Hunt.

LUCINDA SMITH.

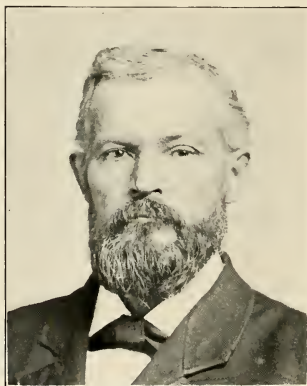

Gayl and Gladys Hunt are twins. Each has inherited a musical ability, which, added to their natural vivacity, makes them especially attractive young school girls.

Richard Stabler Hunt died in infancy.

Edith Stabler married Alfred Pierson Conklin, a lumberman, of Greenfield, Ind., where they live, and in whose home the Rev. and Mrs. Stabler spent their last days. Their daughter is:

V. 1. Mildred Conklin.

* * * * *

James Addison Sims.

James Addison Sims, a contractor and manufacturer of composition roofing, married Jennie Pugh, who died a few years later. Their son is:

V. 1. Walter Sims.

Later, James Addison Sims married Mary E. Laughlin, a gifted and influential woman, who, with her husband, shares the respect and love of a large circle of church friends and neighbors.

Their sons are:

V. 1. Thomas Sims.

2. Ernest Sims.

Both sons were graduated from the University of Michigan. Both are members of the Sigma Nu Fraternity. Thomas lives with his father and mother in Indianapolis, Ind. Ernest is in business in Toronto, Can.

LUCINDA SMITH.

* * * * *

Emily Amanda Sims, the youngest child of Lucinda Smith and James D. Sims, lived but a short time after her marriage to J. Nelson Parr, a minister and physician.

* * * * *

TALITHA SMITH

Talitha Smith was born March 14, 1804, and died November 3, 1835. She was married to Levi Bowman. Their son was:

III. 1. William Bowman.

William Bowman's mother died when he was very young, and he lived with his aunt, Miranda Smith. He married Anna Pfaff, of Westfield, Ind. Their children are:

- ### IV. 1. Flora Bell Bowman.
2. Cora Apellis Bowman.
 3. Levi Walter Bowman.
 4. Harry William Bowman.

Flora Bell Bowman died in infancy.

Cora Bowman, who is still remembered by her Westfield friends as a beautiful girl, died just as she had reached young womanhood.

Walter Bowman lives in Westfield and conducts farming interests with his mother and brother, Harry. Walter married Ina Crago, of Carmel, Ind.

Harry Bowman lives in the old home with his mother and his family. He is a musician and has made some very clever musical instruments, upon which he plays. He married Goldie Meyers. They have a daughter:

V. 1. Cora Bowman.

* * * * *

SIDNEY SMITH

Sidney Smith was born December 24, 1805. His was a life of usefulness, and we are told he was a shining light among his fellowmen. He came from South Carolina and located on a farm south of Jolietville, Ind. He donated the ground for the old Sugar Grove church and cemetery. This was the first place for worship in that community. The log church building was later torn down and some of Sidney Smith's descendants helped to build the frame structure on the same ground. He married Eliza Osborn. He died November 3, 1835.

Their children are:

- III. 1. Martha Ann Smith.
2. Lucinda Caroline Smith.
3. Parintha Smith.
4. John Preston Smith.

Martha Ann Smith married a Mr. Clampitt, who died a few years later. They had one son:

- IV. 1. James Clampitt.

Martha Ann Smith Clampitt married Washington Hoke and moved to North Carolina.

* * * * *

Lucinda Caroline Smith married Jacob P. Johns.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Martha Lucinda Johns.
2. Sarah Rosetta Johns.
3. Amanda Frances Johns.
4. Sidney M. Johns.
5. Mary Ida Johns.
6. Thomas Theodore Johns.
7. Henry Preston Johns.
8. William Walter Johns.

* * * * *

Parintha Smith married George Johns, a brother of Jacob P. Johns.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Eva Johns.
2. Arminnie Clementine Johns.

SIDNEY SMITH.

Eva Johns holds the record of having won the greatest number of prizes in the way of husbands. Her first and second husbands were cousins, both being named Joel Richardson. By the first husband she had one son:

V. 1. Chas. E. Richardson.

By her second husband, Eva Johns had two daughters:

- V. 1. Elsie M. Richardson.
2. Bessie O. Richardson.

Eva John's third and fourth husbands were brothers.

By her fourth husband, William Poor, she had four children:

- V. 1. Leona Poor.
2. Arminnie Poor.
3. Lottie M. Poor.
4. Ermin Poor.

Arminnie C. Johns married Jacob Stilabower. They live in Meadville, Mo. Their children are:

- V. 1. Pearl Stilabower.
2. George E. Stilabower.
3. Carrie C. Stilabower.
4. Lillian M. Stilabower.
5. Eva C. Stilabower.
6. Frank E. Stilabower.
7. Sylvia D. Stilabower.

* * * * *

John Preston Smith was born in Hamilton, county, Indiana, in 1840, and died in Iowa in 1896. He was a successful farmer. He was a member of the M. E. Church for fifty years and a class leader for forty years. He married Sarah J. Alloway. They had six children:

- IV. 1. William Allen Smith.
2. Mary Lucy Smith.
3. Winfield Scott Smith.
4. Selby Alvin Thomas Smith.
5. Addie Eliza Smith.
6. Minnie Rose Smith.

William and Mary Smith died in infancy.

SIDNEY SMITH.

Rev. Winfield Scott Smith.

Winfield Scott Smith is a Presbyterian minister, having been pastor of various charges in Iowa. He married Sarah Amelia Penn.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Lena Esther Smith.
- 2. Maud Amelia Smith.
- 3. Phoebe Elizabeth Smith.
- 4. Penn Scott Smith.

Selby Alvin Thomas Smith married Mollie Hartung. He conducts the "Fort Dodge Times," a paper owned by his brother, the Rev. W. Scott Smith. They live at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Scott C. Smith.
- 2. Selby P. Smith.
- 3. Joy Louise Smith.
- 4. Francis S. Smith.
- 5. John Paul Smith.
- 6. Minnie Margurite Smith.
- 7. Lyle Gay Smith.

Addie Eliza Smith married William Kooker, a farmer. Their children are:

- V. 1. Victor Kooker.
- 2. Selina Kooker.

SIDNEY SMITH.

3. Harold Kooker.
4. Osmond Kooker.
5. Villa Kooker.

Harold and Osmond Kooker are twins.

Minnie Rose Smith is the widow of the Rev. A. C. Hathaway, a Friends minister, who died in Richmond, Ind. They have one son:

V. 1. Francis W. Hathaway.

* * * * *

MIRANDA SMITH

Miranda C. Smith.

Miranda C. Smith was born January 18, 1808. She married Benjamin Madison Smith, of South Carolina. After the birth of their first child they moved to a farm joining the town of Jolietville, Ind., where they built a log house and barn. Later, however, they built a large frame house which was characteristic of that day. It had a center hall extending from the front of the house to the back, where it opened on to a large rear porch. The stairway was in this hall, and the rooms were on each side of the hall. Their youngest child was born in this house. After the death of B. M. Smith, Miranda C. Smith made her home with her second son, who took charge of the home farm, until her death, May 6, 1886.

Their children are:

- III. 1. Sarah Smith.
2. Mary Smith.
3. James Monroe Smith.
4. William W. Smith.
5. Sidney Smith.
6. Amanda Smith.

MIRANDA SMITH.

Sarah Smith Pritchard.

Sarah Smith came to Indiana with her parents and now lives in Noblesville, Ind. She was married to Curtis N. Pritchard.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. James M. Pritchard.
- 2. Emma Pritchard.
- 3. Maud Pritchard.
- 4. Cora Pritchard.
- 5. Ella Pritchard.

James M. Pritchard married Lucy Edwards. They live in Noblesville, Ind.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Cecil Pritchard.
- 2. Berger Pritchard.
- 3. Maggie Pritchard.
- 4. Edith Pritchard.
- 5. Guy Pritchard.

Emma Pritchard was married to John I. Brewington. They live in Kansas.

Maud Pritchard was married to Jacob Tipton. Their only child is:

- V. 1. Bertha Tipton.

Cora Pritchard was married to Mr. Shufflebarger, who died in 1896, leaving a wife and their three children:

MIRANDA SMITH.

- V. 1. Stella Shufflebarger.
2. Glen Shufflebarger.
3. Roy Shufflebarger.

Ella Pritchard was married to Isaac Clark. They live in Carmel, Ind.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Forest Clark.
2. Paul Clark.

* * * * *

Mary Smith married John Thomas. Their children are:

- IV. 1. Horace Thomas.
2. Ossie Thomas.
3. Ruby Thomas.
4. Will Thomas.
5. May Thomas.
6. Minnie Thomas.

Horace and Will Thomas are married.

Ruby Thomas married Albert Knotts.

May Thomas married Ellis Edwards.

Ossie Thomas married Walter Harger.

Minnie Thomas lives in St. Louis, Mo.

* * * * *

James Monroe Smith was a man of whom the relatives were especially proud. He was said to have been a very handsome man, and worthy of the honored name, in character and ability. He married Sarah Ann Mower. They lived on a farm near Jolietville, Ind., until his death by accident. He had climbed into a tree to trim the top of it, when he fell to the ground and was killed.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Laura Smith.
2. Charles Smith.
3. Allie Smith.
4. Nettie Smith.
5. Walter Smith.

Laura Smith married Louis Dreyer. They live in Indianapolis.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Dell Dreyer.
2. Halcy Dreyer.

Dell Dreyer is a stenographer. Halcy Dreyer is a photographic artist.

MIRANDA SMITH.

Charles Smith was a baseball player, when a young man, and he was known all over the country as "Fatty Smith." He is now the genial politician and postmaster at Westfield, Ind. He married Lilly Chew.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Meade Smith.
- 2. Glen Smith.
- 3. Ruby Smith.
- 4. Anna Smith.
- 5. Landis Smith.

Glen Smith is a rural mail carrier at Westfield.

Ruby Smith is married to Mr. Hinshaw, of Westfield, Ind.

Allie Smith married James D. Corbin. They live on a farm near Jolietville, Ind.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Claud Corbin.
- 2. Clare Corbin.
- 3. Lucile Corbin.
- 4. Doyle Corbin.
- 5. Ina Corbin.

Claud and Clare Corbin are twins.

Nettie Smith was married to Jefferson Knox, a druggist, of Zionsville, Ind.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Doris Knox.
- 2. Grace Knox.
- 3. Harold Knox.

Doris Knox is a teacher in the Bocne County schools.

Grace Knox is a sweet singer.

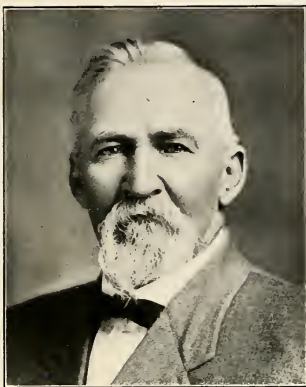

Walter Smith is in the grain, feed and flour business at Jolietville, Ind. He married Eva Chance.

Their son is:

- V. 1. Russell Smith.

* * * * *

MIRANDA SMITH.

Wm. W. Smith.

William W. Smith is living with his family on the old home farm of his parents, joining the town of Jolietville, Ind. For many years he lived in the old homestead, but recently he has built a large house, which stands in front of the one built by his father. Hale and hearty, he enjoys life today, as he always has, and this enjoyment he has shared with his most hospitable family. His wife, nee Lou Corbin, and their three daughters have been influential in their church and vicinity. Their friends and relatives have always found a most cordial welcome in their home. The wife's years of devotion and tender care of her husband's mother will always be remembered by her friends in the family. William W. Smith has served his county as commissioner. He is at present President of the Smith-Pickens Association.

Their daughters are:

- IV. 1. Eva Smith.
- 2. Dell Smith.
- 3. Pearl Smith.

Eva Smith fulfills the mission of the daughter in the home, while Dell and Pearl have gone to homes of their own, having married brothers. Dell married H. R. Johnson and lives on a farm north of Jolietville, Ind. Pearl married Horace W. Johnson, and they live on a farm near Noblesville, Ind.

MIRANDA SMITH.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Edith Johnson.
2. Clifford Johnson.
3. Kathryn Johnson.

Edith is a student at the Indiana State University and a member of the Pi Beta Phi fraternity.

* * * * *

Sidney Smith, son of B. M. and Miranda C. Smith, entered the army at the age of eighteen years. He died from lung fever at Nashville, Tenn. His father was with him at the time of his death and returned to bury the remains in the old Sugar Grove Cemetery, near Jolietville, Ind.

* * * * *

Amanda Smith was married to Samuel Wilson.

Their sons are:

- IV. 1. Frank Wilson.
2. Harry Wilson.

Frank Wilson is the only remaining member of this family. He is living on a farm near Jolietville, Ind.

* * * * *

MARY ANN SMITH

Mary Ann Smith was born July 24, 1810. She married Duff Wilson. The latter part of her married life was spent in the care of an invalid husband, but after his death her entire time was devoted to the families of her brothers and sisters. In sickness and health, in joys and sorrows, all called upon "Aunt Mary," and she was always ready to help them. She had no children, but her life was full of loving deeds for all her kin. She died July 29, 1877.

* * * * *

JOHN C. SMITH

John C. and Amanda Smith.

John Collinsworth Smith was born April 30, 1812, in South Carolina, and lived his entire life in the same county. He lived to be eighty-seven years old, and it must have been eighty-seven years well lived. He was a member of the Methodist Church for about seventy-five years, and pastors looked upon him as a pillar of the church. His religion was his everyday life. John Smith married Amanda Smith, a sister of Benjamin Madison Smith, who married John C. Smith's sister, Miranda Smith. The accompanying picture is one of "Uncle John" and "Aunt Amanda," whose long life together was a beautifully happy one. Their children and grandchildren have nearly all remained in the South.

Their children are:

- III. 1. Monroe Smith.
2. Sarah Elizabeth Smith.
3. John Theodore Smith.
4. Cornelia Jane Smith.
5. Mary Lucretia Smith.
6. William Gamewell Smith.
7. Earl Madison Smith.
8. Warren M. Smith.
9. Martha Emma Smith.

JOHN C. SMITH.

10. Charles Bascom Smith.
11. Jay Lelon Smith.
12. Edwin Smith.
13. Julia May Dora Smith.

Monroe Smith entered the Confederate army and was wounded in the seven days' fight at Vicksburg and died a month later.

* * * * * * *

John Theodore Smith married Esther Burdine. They live on a farm which is adjoining the old home of our grandparents, John and Martha Smith. This is another Methodist family, and they possess the truly southern hospitality.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Monroe Smith.
2. Mary Lenora Smith.
3. Luther Gamewell Smith.
4. Alma Elizabeth Smith.
5. Hubbard Burdine Smith.
6. Oscar Burdine Smith.
7. John Redmond Smith.
8. Clarence Theodore Smith.
9. Charlotte Amanda Smith.

Monroe Smith married Margaret Pickens.

Lenora Smith married John Sheriff.

Luther Smith was a soldier in the Spanish-American war.

John Redmond Smith is the fourth John Smith in a direct line of four generations.

* * * * * * *

Earl Madison Smith married Mary Louisa Young.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Henry Clark Smith.
2. William Hovey Smith.
3. Walter Leland Smith.
4. Mary Lillian Smith.
5. John Coke Smith.

The mother and Lillian died a few years ago.

The father and sons are living in South Carolina, excepting John Coke Smith, who is employed as assistant manager of the lumber yards owned by James Preston Smith at Wabash, Ind.

* * * * * * *

JOHN C. SMITH.

William Gamewell Smith was in the milling business in Cog Hill, Tenn. He conducted an extensive business and was quite successful. He has been dead a few years. His first wife was Savannah M. Kay.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Della K. Smith.
2. Fanny K. Smith.
3. Lula K. Smith.

After the death of his first wife, William Gamewell Smith married Louisa A. Payne.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Mary Amanda Smith.
2. Dora Victoria Smith.
3. William Paul Smith.
4. Claud Collinsworth Smith.

* * * * *

Mary Lucretia Smith married John G. Richardson. They had six children, three boys and three girls.

* * * * *

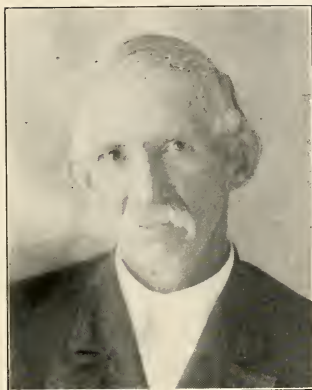

Warren Manning Smith married Nancy Emeline Pickens.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Lilly May Smith.
2. Oliver Dickens Smith.
3. Eunice Ida Smith.
4. Prudence Emeline Smith.
5. Maud Amanda Smith.
6. William Roy Smith.

* * * * *

JOHN C. SMITH.

Charles B. Smith.

Charles Bascom Smith is a farmer in South Carolina. He is also interested in sawmills and cotton gins. He is a devout Wesleyan Methodist. His first wife was Anna Anderson. After her death, he married Martha Ann Webb.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Preston W. Smith.
2. Eula Amanda Smith.
3. Nolan B. Smith.
4. Lola Smith.

* * * * *

Edwin S. Smith's children are:

- IV. 1. Bessie Smith.
2. Mamie Smith.
3. Edith Smith.
4. Clara Smith.

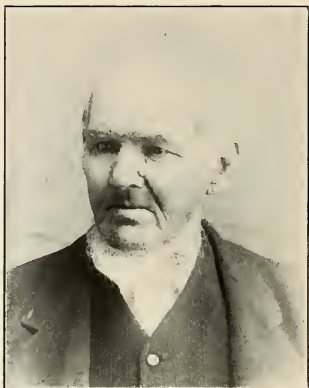

* * * * *

Jay Lelon Smith's children are:

- IV. 1. Herman Franklin Smith.
2. Maddie Moulder Smith.

* * * * *

JAMES D. SMITH

James Douthart Smith.

Martha J. Acker Smith.

When John and Martha Smith had six children, the youngest, six years old, twin boys were born to them, James Douthart and Andrew McKindrew. When these babies were three months old, their mother died, leaving James D. in the home in the care of his oldest sister, Lucinda, then a girl of sixteen years; and Andrew M. was reared by his mother's sister, Elizabeth Pickens. James D. and Andrew M. Smith were born January 26, 1818. James D. died September 2, 1896. Andrew M. died August 21, 1888.

Whether it is a fact that twins are really closer in their affections, or whether they only happen to be more congenial so frequently, I do not know, yet it always seemed to be a fact that these brothers, although separated in babyhood and again in old age, were always very near and dear to each other, and their children have been interested in each other as own brothers and sisters instead of as cousins, and this interest has been felt by their children's children, who are not strangers, however seldom they may have met.

JAMES D. SMITH.

James Douthart Smith was reared on the headwaters of Three and Twenty Creek in South Carolina. In 1868 he sold his plantation and removed to Indiana, whither his four sisters and two of his brothers had removed in the early settlement of that state. For many years preceding, and during the war, he merchandised in partnership with his brother John, and carried on the carriage and buggy business under the firm name of Acker & Smith. He married Martha Jane Acker in 1844. He joined the Methodist Church when a boy, and throughout his entire life, nearly seventy-five years, he was an humble follower of the Master. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. He and his wife died a few years apart in Benton County, Indiana.

They had eight children:

- III. 1. Frances Elvira Smith.
2. Mary Elizabeth Smith.
3. Andrew McGilvery Smith.
4. James Leard Smith.
5. Infant son.
6. Infant daughter.
7. Ruth Alice Smith.
8. Margaret Lucretia Smith.

1139155

Frances E. Smith Russell.

Frances Elvira Smith was born in South Carolina and was educated at Williamston College in Anderson County, S. C. She was married to D. H. Russell, a graduate of the University of Virginia. They went to Indiana to live for a time, where Mr. Russell taught school. Later they returned to Anderson, South Carolina, where Mr. Russell is now editing the "People's Advocate." Their children reflect their mother's queenly grace and their father's mental and moral stamina. All are members of the Presbyterian Church.

JAMES D. SMITH.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Martha Jane Russell.
2. Alice May Russell.
3. Lela Aletha Russell.
4. Hugh Hamilton Russell.
5. James Walker Russell.
6. Thomas Halbert Russell.
7. Lula Acker Russell.
8. Ted. G. Russell.

Martha Jane, James W. and Lula Acker Russell died in infancy.

Alice May Russell impresses one at once with her dignity and capability. She is teaching in the public schools of Anderson, S. C., and at the same time is assuming the responsibilities of the home, that the cares may rest lightly upon the mother, who is cherished as only such a mother deserves to be.

Lela Aletha Russell, of charming personality and exceptional conversational ability, holds the position as critic teacher in the State Normal College at Rock Hill, S. C. She was educated in Anderson, S. C., and took a special course of study at Columbia University.

Hugh Hamilton Russell is a farmer and lives near Anderson, S. C. He married Amy Lillian Dean.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Anna May Russell.
2. Dean Russell.
3. Elizabeth Russell.

Thomas and Ted Russell were educated at the Military School at Staunton, Virginia, owned by Captain Kable. Their records as students and as young men were such that each secured for himself a splendid position as professor in this school, and both were fortunate in marrying the lovely daughters of Captain Kable. Thomas is now a captain, and Ted is a major.

Thomas has a son:

- V. 1. Kable Russell.

* * * * *

JAMES D. SMITH.

Mary E. Smith McConnell.

Mary E. Smith was a music teacher when she was married to Jasper W. McConnell, of Oxford, Ind, then Deputy County Treasurer, but now in the real estate business. They went to Arkansas for a short stay in their early married life, but their home has been in Oxford, Ind., ever since. This is a Presbyterian family.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Ada Dell McConnell.
2. Lon Dee McConnell.
3. Clara DeForest McConnell.
4. Bert Drell McConnell.
5. Will Deland McConnell.
6. Jasper Donald McConnell.

Dell McConnell, a beautiful girl, who has grown into a beautiful woman, married William M. Harmon. They lived for a few years in Texas, but have returned to Oxford, Ind.

- V. 1. Russell Harmon.
2. Pauline Harmon.
3. Wilma Harmon.

Lon D. McConnell is an agent for an insurance company, traveling over Indiana and Ohio. The loss of his wife, Lola McConnell, leaves him with the added care of mother as well as father over his two children:

JAMES D. SMITH.

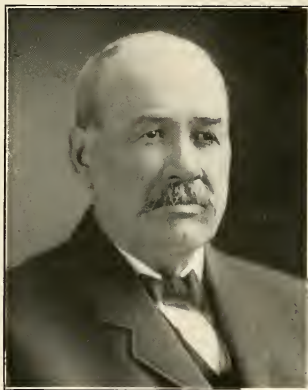

- V. 1. Tyrell McConnell.
2. Virginia McConnell.

Clara McConnell's mission in life was fulfilled in early girlhood and her light went out, leaving its shadow in the home which she had brightened.

Bert McConnell is cashier of a bank in Lafayette, Ind.

Will McConnell is married and he and Jasper D. are in the real estate business with their father.

* * * * *

Andrew McGilvery Smith.

Andrew McGilvery Smith and James Leard Smith came to Indiana with their father in 1868. They married sisters, Ella and Rose Haigh, of Otterbein, Ind. Both men were salesmen for a time, but located on farms of their own near Otterbein, where they lived for many years. Recently A. M. Smith's family went to Otterbein for residence. Both families are Methodists.

Andrew McGilvery and Ella Smith's children have had good educational advantages and all have found places for themselves in their homes and communities.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Laura Haigh Smith.
2. Myrtle Lona Smith.
3. Ruby Ellen Smith.

JAMES D. SMITH.

4. Aletha Maud Smith.
5. Clarence Acker Smith.
6. James Edward Smith.
7. Eva Elizabeth Smith.
8. Emmett Spencer Smith.
9. Andrew McGilvery Smith, Jr.

Laura and Myrtle Smith were successful teachers in the Benton County schools.

Laura and Ruby had a double wedding.

Laura Smith married Frank Moore, a farmer.

Their children are:

- V. 1. Perry Moore.
2. Myra M. Moore.

Myrtle Smith married Mr. Walsh, a farmer, and they live near King Hill, Idaho. Their daughter is:

- V. 1. Ardis Ellen Walsh.

Ruby Smith married Thomas Bowyer. They have a beautiful farm home south of Otterbein, Ind. Their children are:

- V. 1. Naomi Bowyer.
2. Elizabeth Aletha Bowyer.

Aletha Maud Smith received training as a nurse in a hospital in Lafayette, Ind., and she has proven herself a gifted and capable nurse.

Clarence Acker Smith married Bessie McGinnis. They live in Kempton, Ind., where Mr. Smith is the successful manager and joint owner of a lumber yard with J. Preston Smith. Their children are:

- V. 1. Dorothy M. Smith.
2. Frances Paula Smith.

James Edward Smith married the postmistress of King Hill, Idaho. He is in the real estate business at that place.

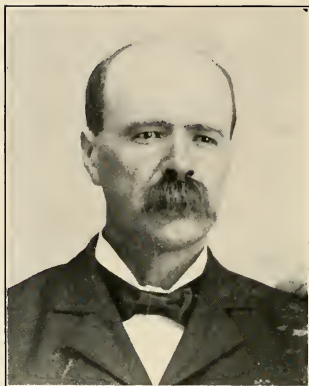

Eva Elizabeth Smith is a gifted musician and a successful teacher.

Emmett Spencer Smith is a bookkeeper, located in California.

Andrew McGilvery Smith, Jr., is a railroad postal clerk.

* * * * *

JAMES D. SMITH.

James L. Smith.

James Leard Smith was unfortunate in having trouble with his eyes and he has become almost blind. Yet he goes about over his farm and manages his affairs with the greatest success. James Leard and Rose H. Smith's children are:

- IV. 1. Sidney Smith.
 2. Frances Elvira Smith.
 3. Leo D. Smith.
 4. Beulah Leard Smith.
 5. Herbert Spencer Smith.
 6. Winona M. Smith.
 7. Rosalie Smith.

Sidney Smith is assistant cashier of the Otterbein bank.

Fanny Smith is a school teacher.

The younger children are still in happy childhood.

* * * * * * *

Three children of James D. and Martha A. Smith died in infancy. They were twins—a boy and a girl, and a daughter, Ruth Alice.

* * * * * * *

JAMES D. SMITH.

Margaret Lucretia Smith Bolt.

Margaret Lucretia Smith, the youngest child, was married to Robert Henry Bolt. They both attended school in Anderson County, S. C., and later, with their parents, moved to Otterbein, Ind., where they were married and have since lived. Mr. Bolt has been cashier of the State Bank of Otterbein many years. Their only son is:

IV. 1. Wade Bolt.

Wade Bolt is a musician of ability, and he is editor of a newspaper in Otterbein, Ind.

* * * * *

ANDREW M. SMITH

The melodian was purchased over fifty years ago by Andrew M. Smith, was played upon by all of his children, and is now in the possession of William J. Smith.

The history of the family of Andrew McKindrew Smith is an open story book to the one who has undertaken this account. Sketches from these lives have been repeated to illustrate every point in moral teachings, to quicken the imagination, to make acute the sense of humor, to awaken a love for deeds of valor, and to cultivate a sympathetic heart. These sketches are full of wit and pathos, and indeed there is a story to fit every emotion. The stories of each of the other brothers' and sisters' families are just as interesting, no doubt, but they have not been my nursery tales.

However, the history of this branch is probably more or less typical of all families of that period, and it may be that some of the pleasures and some of the hardships are unknown to the present generation, and for that reason and because of the more intimate knowledge which makes this branch more real, as it were, a fuller account is given.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Andrew M. and Minerva W. Smith, with their baby, Jay.

Andrew McKindrew Smith, born in South Carolina, was reared by his "Aunt Betsy," or Elizabeth Pickens, who, after his marriage, made her home with him for a number of years, and at her death left her property to him.

When a young man he came to Hamilton County, Indiana, where he wooed the sixteen-year-old daughter of Samuel Benjamin Wagaman. When he asked for her hand, her father replied that she could not cook, but after the youthful lover assured her father that she could learn to cook the father consented and Andrew Smith married Minerva Caroline Wagaman and returned to South Carolina, where this girl not only learned to cook, but to spin, weave, sew and knit, not only for her family of little ones, which so soon numbered twelve, but she provided clothing for the slaves which were left them with the property. Most of the slaves were field hands, and it was little help the young wife received in the house. But her marvelous patience and wonderful courage may be imagined when her oldest son recalls awakening in the night and seeing his mother sitting by the open fire knitting stockings and softly singing, "I'm glad salvation's free."

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Shortly before the war they freed their slaves and with their family of nine children, one child having died in infancy, moved to Indiana, where the two youngest children were born. They lived in Benton County, Indiana, but after the mother's death, the father went to Kansas, where he died in 1888.

Andrew M. Smith was a devout Methodist, and wherever he lived he organized a Sunday School. His own family furnished the singing, and with a few neighbors attending, he conducted the services. Sometimes they met in school houses, and one time he conducted his Sunday School in the woods with all of them sitting on fallen trees. Their children are:

- III. 1. Margaret Ann Smith.
2. Samuel McPherson Smith.
3. Louisa Caroline Smith.
4. Miranda Emeline Smith.
5. Mary Adelaide Smith.
6. James Preston Smith.
7. Infant daughter.
8. William Jones Smith.
9. Andrew Fletcher Smith.
10. Cornelia Josephine Smith.
11. Jay Whiteford Smith.
12. Edgar Orlando Smith.

Can you picture a happier family than this, as they gather about the little old melodian and sing the old familiar hymns? Or, fancy the boys and girls as they start out with the young people of the neighborhood, all on horses, as they go galloping over the country. Imagine the flurry as they all try to make the necessary preparations to go out together. Living in a modest home, with probably six or eight almost grown, imagine one of the boys with soap in ears and eyes, as he pauses in the process, to rush to the room where the boys' clothes are laid out, and where some of them are dressing, and again hear him say, "Say! fellers, I wish you would save me a pretty good shirt." And, oh! you most fortunate girl with at least one brother, do you suppose these girls' blessings were sixfold when their brothers began to tease? How did they ever get a Sunday cake to keep till Sunday in the house with six boys?

These boys were all named for Methodist ministers, with the hope that such names would make good men of them.

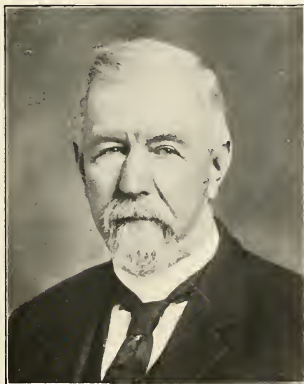

ANDREW M. SMITH.

These children received the education available near their home, some of them attending academies and normal colleges. Margaret, Samuel, Emeline and Adelaide were successful teachers.

And now we turn to the pathetic ending of the life of the mother, who gave so much to the world. And to the death of all the daughters in rapid succession.

Margaret A. Smith was a great help in the home, in sharing the responsibilities borne by the mother, and in inspiring the brothers and sisters to greater ambitions. While teaching school in Hamilton County, Indiana, she died, after a short illness, at the home of her brother, Samuel.

* * * * *

Samuel M. Smith.

Samuel M. Smith married Aletha Ann White, of Westfield, Ind., who has been honored by the Smith family with numerous namesakes on the tree.

Samuel M. Smith was the second President of the Smith-Pickens Association.

A mere friend might describe him as a successful farmer, a man of fine business and moral principles, a man with an academic education, and born with a natural love for reading, and a yearning for things higher and better. An old fashioned Methodist, a thirty-second degree Mason, a staunch Republican, and a dyed-in-the-wool Smith. But from the standpoint of a child or grandchild he is simply "papa" and "grandpa," with all that the words imply. We feel that one need only to look upon his tall, broad form to know the burdens which have rested so confidently there, to look into his kind, gentle eyes to know the love and sympathy which are always found in his heart. To see him in his home and recall the tender devotion of years to a wife whose years of invalidism were made rich by his patience and by his efforts to keep apace with her ambitions for their children. His greatest joy has been to provide for the comfort and pleasure of his family and with such a heart, many a widow and orphan has sought his council. This love and interest in his own family has reached to the larger family circle and on beyond to that universal brotherhood which has included many strangers. And now as he and his wife go hand in hand towards the setting sun, enjoying the fruits of their labor, their children are ready to rise up and call them blessed. They recently moved to Indianapolis, Ind., as a central point between the scattered nests of their birdlings, who, in turn, find the warmth of the home nest never ceases to warm as they return frequently from their little flights.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

They educated their children at the Friend's Academy at Westfield, Ind., near their farm home, and the girls attended DePauw University at Greencastle, Ind., the boys choosing an early business career.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Euberta Smith.
- 2. Percy Smith.
- 3. Elizabeth Minerva Smith.
- 4. Adelaide Smith.
- 5. Olive Smith.
- 6. Grace Smith.

After receiving a practical knowledge of farming, Euberta and Percy Smith went into the drygoods and grocery business at Zionsville, Ind., where they have been for a number of years. They have dealt in livestock, and have taken contracts for building gravel roads, as side lines and have succeeded well in all lines. Their homes are well located on a pretty street near their place of business. They are identified with all good movements of church and vicinity, and have always remained loyal to the staid teachings of the Quaker ancestors of their mother, and have been true to the standards of Smith Methodism.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Bert Smith married Halcyone H. Dove, a sweet singer, of Westfield, Ind.

Their daughter is:

V. 1. Irene Smith.

Irene Smith is a charming young girl with promising gifts.

Percy Smith married Maud Alford, of Zionsville, Ind. In their home, one is greeted with genuine old time hospitality, for Maud's father and mother were reluctant to give up their only daughter, but most graciously accepted the new son-in-law, as this happy quartet entered the new home together.

Elizabeth Minerva Smith, endowed with the names of her two grandmothers, compromised the title by being simply Bessie M. Smith. After graduating from the Art Department of DePauw University, she spent some time in study and travel. She studied with the best artists in Indianapolis, took special course in art at Chicago, Ill., and Chautauqua, N. Y. Besides extensive trips throughout the United States, she traveled in Europe and Japan. She is now Dean of Women of DePauw University and is Director of the Art Department of the university.

Adelaide Smith, after graduating at DePauw University, went to Europe with her sister. She taught mathematics for a number of years in the high schools of Carmel, Bluffton and Noblesville, Ind. She is now instructor of English and German at DePauw University. She is also chaperoning the chapter house of the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity, of which she is a member. However much she is occupied at home or at school, she always finds time and strength to serve the church in all its departments of work. Her motto in life seems to be "Anything worth doing at all is worth doing well," for everything she undertakes is done with exactness and precision.

Olive Smith died in infancy.

Grace Smith is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity of DePauw University. She taught English and history in the high school at Pendleton, Ind. She was married to her childhood sweetheart, Fred L. Pettijohn, a physician, of Indianapolis, Ind., where they live and in whose home many relatives and friends have sought mental and physical balm.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Their two daughters are:

- V. 1. Aletha Harriett Pettijohn.
2. Martha Grace Pettijohn.

These two little girls, full of promise for the future, hold the hearts of many in the hollows of their hands.

* * * * *

Soon after the removal of Andrew M. Smith's family from South Carolina to Indiana, all of the family fell ill with typhoid fever, and Louisa, a beautiful blue-eyed girl, with golden hair, fell a victim to the disease and died.

* * * * *

Miranda Emeline Smith married James B. Higgins, of Zionsville, Ind. Emeline gave up her life for the little life which went out with her own, but she left to the world a little daughter who was to grow up to be just such a woman as she was. For all the descriptions of appearance, manner and general make-up seem to be embodied in our knowledge of her daughter, Pearl.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Estella Higgins.
2. Pearl Higgins.

Estella Higgins died in infancy.

Pearl Higgins was married to John Henry Shoaf, a manufacturer of biscuit dies. Pearl is an example of a contented and capable housewife and mother, whose gentle and unassuming manner has always endeared her to the entire family, and this same example has been imparted to her two lovely daughters:

- V. 1. Doris Shoaf.
2. Marie Shoaf.

Doris and Marie Shoaf are attending Shortridge High School, Indianapolis, Ind.

* * * * *

Mary Adelaide Smith possessed an artistic temperament. She loved the beautiful and ever sought the good. She married James Wiley, a farmer and stock dealer. They had five children, only one of whom is living. Like her sister Emeline, her life was sacrificed for the sake of one who went with her to the next world.

Their children are:

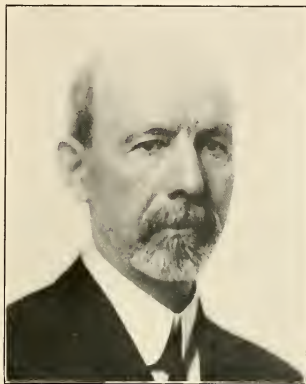

- IV. 1. Infant.
2. Aletha Wiley.
3. Leland Wiley.
4. Ray Wiley.
5. Infant.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Aletha and Leland Wiley were twins. Aletha died in infancy. Leland lived to survive the mother a few years.

Ray Wiley, the only living member of this family, is married and lives in Bentley, Kansas. He is in the mercantile business.

* * * * *

James Preston Smith.

James Preston Smith is probably the most successful in business, from a financial standpoint, of all the entire family. His extensive interests have been chiefly in the lumber business. He married Genevieve Hays, a charming woman and a talented musician, whose gracious hospitality has ever been extended to the members of this large family circle. Their united generosity and hospitality has been extended times without number. In fact, the stories of Kris Kringle fade in significance as the nieces recall the impartial distribution of lovely gold necklaces and such things dear to their girlish hearts. And when certain other relatives have received new winter gowns, it seemed that another elf had stepped out of Fairyland.

Their only child is:

IV. 1. Preston Hays Smith.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Hays Smith, an invalid from birth, has been such a patient sufferer and is of such an unusual disposition that every one who meets him learns one of life's sweetest lessons, and it seems fitting to pay him a little tribute, however feeble the attempt may be.

TO HAYS.

Oh! Cousin Hays, with a heart of gold,
And disposition sweet, as we're told,
Turn us from this ever frenzied strife,
Show us your philosophy of life,
That we, too, may turn our clouds about,
And wear their bright linings inside out.

* * * * *

William Jones Smith.

William Jones Smith received his education at a normal school and entered the business of manufacturing tile—a pioneer business in a pioneer country. He succeeded well, but is now devoting his time to extensive farming interests. No doubt his daughter, Margaret, would claim he is the best man on earth and few there would be who would try to deny it. Always a favorite among his nieces, he stands as an example of unselfish faithful manhood. He married Laura Brockway, and they live in Fowler, Ind., where they have one of the most beautiful homes in the city.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Their only child is:

IV. 1. Margaret Smith.

Margaret Smith is attending DePauw University. She is a musician and a member of the Alphi Chi Omega Sorority.

* * * * *

Andrew Fletcher Smith.

One can not properly appreciate the life and character of Andrew Fletcher Smith unless the view is taken of his entire family, for he is principally a family man. His happy disposition, linked with the tranquil acquiescence of his wife's manner, and their frolicsome family of six represent one long dream of bliss. Fletcher Smith is a farmer and stock dealer. He has shared in the honors of a citizen of Fowler many years and has assisted in the work of church, party and city. He married Anna Parker, of Fowler, Ind.

Their children are:

- IV. 1. Parker Smith.
2. Bernice Smith.
3. Andrew Smith.
4. Lois Smith.
5. Elsie Smith.
6. Harriett Minerva Smith.

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Parker Smith married Etta Ruth, of Logansport, Ind., where they live and where Parker is employed by a manufacturer of harness.

Bernice Smith was married to Harold Woodburn, a civil engineer, of Indianapolis, Ind. Their baby daughter is:

V. 1. Anna Bernice Woodburn.

Andrew Smith is an electrician.

Lois Smith is attending DePauw University. She is of an artistic temperament and charming personality. She is a member of the Alpha Chi Omega Sorority.

Elsie Smith, although a high school girl, has already displayed a remarkable domestic ability.

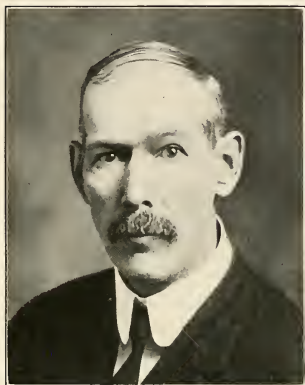

Harriett Smith, the baby daughter, is a fun loving little girl of a most loveable disposition.

* * * * *

Cornelia Josephine Smith, the youngest daughter of A. M. and Minerva Smith, was loving and true. As a young lady, she was sunny and bright, and she made many friends. When very young she assumed the responsibility of housekeeper and home-maker for her father and brothers, until the father and two younger brothers went to Kansas to live. She then resumed her studies. While attending the Normal College at Valparaiso, Ind., she became very ill with typhoid fever. She was taken to the home of friends, the Brockway family in Fowler, and, although tenderly cared for by these friends and by her three older brothers, she succumbed to the disease.

* * * * *

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Jay W. Smith.

Few men live to realize their own worth or to experience the appreciation of their fellowmen, but this was the experience of Jay Whiteford Smith, when he, recently, moved his business—that of the manufacture of harness and dealer of buggies and automobile supplies—from Fowler, Ind., to Logansport, Ind. He was given a remarkably unique farewell by his church friends and fellow citizens. He had taught a class of young ladies in Sunday School for several years. He has been honored with all the offices of his lodge—Knights of Pythias. He is full of appreciation, gratitude, sympathy, and good, common sense. He possesses a keen sense of wit and an abundance of the spirit of human kindness. He is a well read man, having become self-educated by his wide and well-chosen reading. There is scarcely a subject suggested, but that he can impart some information upon it. Moreover he is an excellent listener. He is “optimistic Jay” to three generations, each one of whom declares him to be most loveable and companionable. He is a real living example of a true Christian.

* * * * *

ANDREW M. SMITH.

Edgar O. Smith.

Edgar Orlando Smith was educated in the country schools and the business college of Wichita, Kansas. Later he came to Indiana and was employed in auditing accounts for a number of banks in Indiana and Illinois. For several years he has been in the cooperage business in Louisville, Ky., in which business he has met with success. He and his wife, Eudora, have a pleasantly situated home in Louisville, Ky. They have a fine baby girl:

IV. 1. Mildred Smith.

* * * * *

IN CONCLUSION.

Were it possible to draw a composite picture of the Smith men, I should say, he is, of course, John Smith, a man six feet and two inches in height, weighing over two hundred pounds, and is of unusual soundness of both mind and body. I am sure we would all of us rejoice to have him pass through the pioneer days and remain true to the simple teachings of that time, and yet we would wish for him to have a modern home with all the advantages of the present day.

He would be a Methodist, with a little leaning towards Presbyterianism. He would be a tiller of the soil, that he might love Nature as well as mankind. I tremble at the suggestion of his politics, and leave it, like the present political situation, to be solved by time. But, above all things, he will show the greatest wisdom in the selection of his mate for life. For this man of steady nerve, of strong will, of tender heart, a man of bigness of body, mind and soul, chooses a wife of dignity, refinement, ambition and courage. They have a family of six children, two of whom are twins, of course. These children are given every advantage for growing into strong and beautiful men and women, serving God and their fellow men.

And for a composite picture of the Smith-Pickens woman, we would turn, with pride, to our illustrious grandmother, Martha Pickens Smith, and inherit not only the rights of a D. A. R. member, but the rights of “A perfect woman—nobly planned,

To warm, to comfort and to command.”

Be she a mother or a teacher, we would see her faithfully performing the tasks at hand.

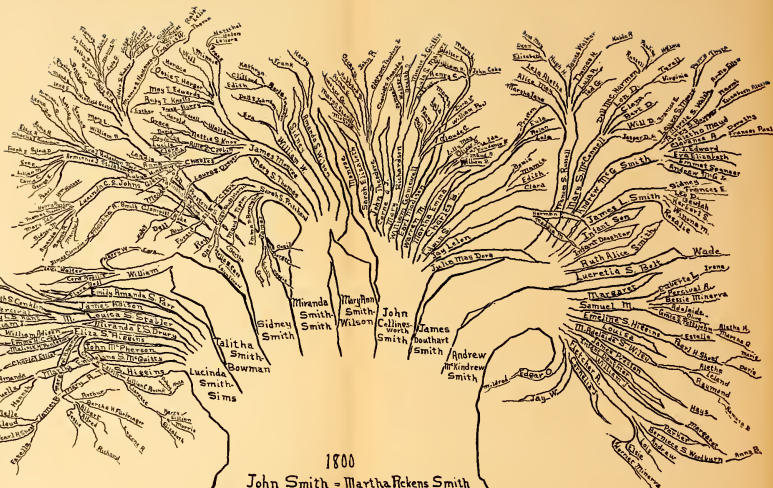

* * * * *

Home of John C. Smith in South Carolina.

Home of Andrew M. Smith in South Carolina.

1800
John Smith = Martha Rickens Smith

